understandable why James Bond remains at the centre of his audience's affection.” Sovereign, SPECTRE and Quantum of Solace dominated the UK box office in 2005, with £159.12 million, £159.76 million and £145.33 million respectively. Bond movies are money makers for the BBC, Sky, Universal and Sony. 5 comments : I need to see film to get my fix on UK Bond.

Another curious issue is that the rest of the world loves our 007 while we treat him like shit.

People there don't seem to mind that his appearance is all out of focus. The other thing is the film are very different.

Let's face it, the stupidest Bond films have been the best, they know just how to screw things up. The current Bond films are far from that, damn shame, we could have had a cracking one.

All the hip lingo in the world won't help. Welcome to the UK site Dave. I've been browsing for a while on here, but for some reason it doesn't always show up. I'm a big fan of the series, I'm currently reading which is the 7th or 8th? what's the name of it? It's the one with all the spinoffs. I must say I'm still really enjoying the series. I think what makes Bond so popular is the longevity of the character, I think the actors make it worthwhile. I think Daniel Craig is a perfect Bond for the next few years at least. And at the moment I'm going around saying nice things about a film when I usually
