Paint Shop Pro Paint Shop Pro is not an editing program like Photoshop or Illustrator, but it is useful for working with photos and logos, because it has a great photo-manipulation capability. Paint Shop Pro supports layered photo editing and has tools for resizing, cropping, adding effects, and rotating. Although Paint Shop Pro now has the Photoshop Tools and Effects filters, it still has a large selection of useful photo-editing tools. To create layers, place images in cells. To group together similar images, hold down the ALT key while you click each image; it creates a new cell on its own. Another feature of Paint Shop Pro is the ability to work with bitmaps as layers. To create a bitmap layer, hold down the ALT key while you click the image, and it creates a new cell with its own bitmap as a layer. You can easily copy or move a bitmap layer by dragging it, just as you can with regular layers. You can choose between working with images in their individual cells or in layers. * Paint Shop Pro: _._

So far this year, the Obama Administration has lost at least five U.S. soldiers, three of them to IED attacks, one to a sniper attack, and one to suicide by gunshot. As of last night, the U.S. forces estimate that 1,000 enemy combatants have been killed. Overall, the U.S. has lost somewhere between 7,000 and 10,000 soldiers since the war began in 2001. The Taliban and al-Qaeda have lost 1,700 troops, according to the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and the U.S. has lost more than 30,000. "[T]he Taliban often use improvised explosive devices, or IEDs, to target our troops, and our forces have suffered high casualties as a result," Admiral Mike Mullen, the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, told reporters last week. We were going to bring Osama bin Laden to justice, but we missed the opportunity when we should have most probably dealt with him. That was in March. Since that time we have lost numerous opportunities to kill or capture him, his courier and his closest lieutenants. The Bush Administration went to war with fewer than 10,000 troops on one front, which is now being occupied by tens of thousands of Americans and backed up by a set of Afghan security forces that are also being trained by U.S. soldiers. The Bush Administration has been largely silent for eight years about the war, but now the momentum is with the Obama Administration, and now that most Americans realize that the war is a long term losing proposition for
