The software is easy to learn, and it's well worth its cost of almost $500 for anyone who regularly edits images. Adobe offers Photoshop for computer and a portable version that you can carry with you in the form of the Adobe Creative Suite. * * * Photoshop is most useful for image manipulation. Don't expect it to replace an image editing program such as Paint Shop Pro or Pixelmator — that job requires a complete image editing solution. Photoshop can be used to adjust color or convert color spaces, as well as perform some basic effects such as blur and sharpen. It's also great for photo retouching. Photoshop also has features for graphic design and web layout, although you can use it to design and output web pages through a web browser as well. Graphic designers will undoubtedly be interested in Photoshop's capabilities, because it is the industry standard for creating graphic designs. Illustrators such as Kristina Muraski use Photoshop for brand protection and licensing. Adobe's Media Encoder and the program's browser plug-in allow producers to send work to a broadcast graphics server from within Photoshop. # THE RIGHT TOOL FOR THE JOB Sometimes, using Photoshop is just as important as using Photoshop. For example, if you must print an image and it is not in the right orientation, or if you're creating a business card, a greeting card, or a color palette on a web page, you can use Photoshop. Although it's good to have all the skills in Photoshop, what you really need is to know what you want to do. The more you understand what Photoshop can and cannot do, the more it will help you achieve the look and feel that you're looking for. The features of Photoshop are available through a command-line interface, as well as the menu and toolbars shown in the desktop version of the program. By selecting either a tool in the toolbox or through menus, you access the features.

Man City's Fabian Delph scoops young player of the year award at FA Cup Manchester City's Fabian Delph scooped the prestigious young player of the year award at the FA Cup on Tuesday night. The 23-year-old's mesmerising solo effort in the 4-2 win over Millwall sealed the award for the central midfielder. Delph's header in the first half levelled up a first-half City scoreline that included goals from Raheem Sterling, Pablo Zabaleta and a hat-trick from Sergio Aguero. And Delph, who had his fourth cup goal this season on the night, was named young player of the year by the Football Association. "It was a nice, entertaining win tonight, regardless of how we're going to play next season," said Delph in his post-match interview. "That was something to be good memories to have. Obviously it's a fantastic trophy, to win it at Millwall was massive for the lads, the fans were brilliant throughout the whole game and I've got great memories of it. "I had no idea when I came in the dressing room, it was unbelievable what was going on. You know it's a fantastic trophy and to win it at Millwall, it's brilliant, it's a fantastic achievement and I'm proud to win it." Delph will be hoping to play a part in City's Uefa Champions League campaign next term. The talented England international had to settle for a place on the bench in the 3-0 opening defeat to Juventus in Turin on Sunday. But he was able to pull on the famous blue of City once again in the FA Cup third round and his goal was the difference between the two sides. "It was great to be back in the dressing room," added Delph. "We had a good watch through of the Juventus game, so you can see them were a good team, they played well. "I think once we got back to the dressing room a lot of the lads started to get back into their stride as well, so it was nice to be back out there. "It was a good win. I don't think anyone expected us to win, they were a good side, but we were on top and we deserved to win. "It was a good game, a good experience, was nice to get

GitHub Open Sources the Chromecast: "We know there is a market for this" - davemead ===== joebo > GitHub will be providing the physical servers and full-blown Google > infrastructure in case you want to host your own Chromecast. "Hosting it is > recommended if you want to do so at scale." Hmm... something to keep in mind if there's a lot of interest in a project. ---- quadrangle That's the approach that Reddit does with their own hosting. They provide the physical servers and own infrastructure, and you put your content into that infrastructure, but you still keep the source on GitHub to encourage contributions. The content you put in Reddit's infrastructure is also minimally seen by outsiders so people don't get any questionable reputation over there. ----- joshmlewis I'm disappointed there was no mention of the actual hardware itself. ---- NegativeK I'm wondering the same thing. I'd guess they know enough about the circuit details for the Chromecast to describe it accurately, but I would love to know more about what's going on in the silicon. ----- phmagic I think if you look at a phone/tablet/desktop client, you'll see the development of that UI and how developers like working will be applicable across a wide variety of devices. ---- JDiculous Agreed, most apps are cross platform nowadays, even mobile games are seeing strong cross platform play. Cortisol and testosterone in female humans during the follicular and luteal phases of the menstrual cycle. In order to examine the effects of changes in gonadal function on free cortisol and free testosterone, 23 women, aged 16 to 24, were studied during a menstrual cycle. Blood samples were obtained on two consecutive days from each subject, from days 1 through 8 and from days 14 through 19 of the menstrual cycle. Plasma free cortisol concentrations were elevated, with maxima occurring on days 7 through 14. Although there were no significant correlations between cortisol and luteinizing hormone or estradiol, there was a highly significant correlation ($r = 0.75$, P less than 0.0005) between
